On the manufacturing of the furniture and upholstery

Each bench, each armchair and each cushion from cst-furniture.com is individually made.

The benches and the L'Impératrice armchair are made from solid wood slats laid out parallel to one another at regular intervals. The individual pieces of wood are initially cut using CNC-controlled machinery, but each item of furniture is then assembled and finished by hand. With the benches, the corner joints are mitred and glued with a special dovetail joint, making them especially durable and weather-resistant. No screws are utilised. To ensure an absolutely uniform surface and sharply angled edges and corners, the finished pieces are given one last overall sanding.

Finally, the alder is coated with two layers of white-coloured water-based varnish while the larch wood is treated twice with natural organic resin oils, resulting in a waterproof finish suitable for use outdoors. All furniture pieces are fitted with nylon sliders and imprinted with a signature stamp on the underside. For the IVY-CHAIR, solid wood square profiles are employed in various dimensions. The entire armchair is manufactured by hand. The corner joints are dowelled and secured with waterproof glue without the use of screws. For the finish, natural organic resin oil is utilised. The armchair is fitted with nylon sliders.

For the upholstery cushions and mattresses, high-grade foam is padded with fleece and covered in cotton fabric. To keep the upholstery in place, two specially developed nylon toggles are affixed through the upholstery. The washable upholstery covers in 100% white linen (from Christian Fischbacher) are fitted on the underside or back with openings for the nylon toggles and with Velcro fasteners. The large cushions for the Sofa-Set consist of a fixed cotton cover with three compartments filled with goose down. The 100% white linen outer cover has an envelope closure on the side with three sets of ties.
